Independent State Is Irish Solution; Hold Secret Meet

DUBLIN, Aug. 18.—Dail eireann (Sinn Fein parliament) was in secret session here today and it was understood that the members were debating the British peace offer as the preliminary to the formulation of an offical communication to Premier Lloyd George containing counter proposals.

Public To Decide

The Irish Times, in commenting upon the peace situation said:

"If a deadlock has been reached then the time has come to refer the British government's offer to the people. The people are certainly entitled to be consulted on a question concerning the life and peace of every man, woman and child. If a deadlock has not been reached and if dail eireann thinks that some advance, however small and tentative, can be made towards a settlement then it ought to be made very quickly. To us the British government's offer appears to be definite and final."

The Freeman's Journal calls for a plain statement from the British government, whether or not it endorses General Smuts' interpretation of the English proposals. If so, said this newspaper, it must go a long way to establish peace.

No New Disorders

General Smuts in a letter to Eamonn De Valera, stated that the British offer guaranteed Ireland dominion rule. DeValera in his first speech to dail eireann denied that Ireland would have dominion status under the British terms.

Although the situation is critical and DeValera has announced that the British offer will not and cannot be accepted there has been no recurrence of disorders and both sides are still observing the armistice.

107 BLACKHAND MURDERS BARED

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—One hundred and seven unavenged murders, is the total laid today to the various American branches of a Sicilian Camerra, with headquarters in Palermo, Italy, the existance of which was brought to light Wednesday when the Brooklyn branch planned to roast to death one of its members who "knew too much."

Captain Fiaschetti, of the New York Italian squad, said today that he has positive evidence that the gangs killed seventeen persons in New York, 70 in Detroit and 20 in Chicago.

In addition it is believed that recent daring daylight murders in crowded city streets were committed by members of the gangs.

Seven of the gang today are held in the Tombs charged with the murders of Carmillio Caiczzc, who was shot to death on a nearby farm by Bartolo Fontano, on July 30.

Two of those arrested have, according to detectives, made statements corroborating Fontao's confession.

NEWARK MAYOR IS SUSPENDED

COLUMBUS, Aug. 18.—Governor Davis has suspended Mayor H. A. Atherton, of Newark, democrat, from office for 30 days. The governor announced that on August 30 he will hear charges, filed with him by the law enforcement league of Licking county, which allege that the mayor received protection money from gamblers.

If the charges are sustained, the governor stated he will remove Mayor Atherton. On the other hand, the suspension will be lifted if the charges are not sustained.

The governor's action was preceded by an investigation made by Attorney General Price. It was stated that the attorney general obtained additional information relative to charges of misconduct in office and gross neglect of duty involving allegations of bribery for the protection of alleged gamblers.

Mayor Atherton, declared that gamblers, whose places had been raided, framed up the charges.

Written charges, filed with the governor by the Law enforcement league, claim that Mayor Atherton afforded official protection to persons in conducting gambling rooms in Newark and prevented them from being prosecuted and failed to cause prosecutions to be instituted against them.

As made public by Governor Davis, the charges allege:

That Lawrence Pfeiffer paid Atherton $25 a week in October, November and December last year, and again in February and March,

RUSSIA RELIEF MEETING WITH NEW OPPOSITION

RIGA, Aug. 18.—Additional issues have been raised in the Russian relief negotiations between Walter L. Brown, representative of Secretary Hoover and M. Litvinof, delegate of the soviet government. A complete agreement may not be reached until the end of this week, it was stated today.

An agreement was reached late Wednesday night upon two disputed points as follows:

Relief committees are to include Russians of all classes and the American relief association is to retain the right of deciding where relief shall be distributed.

The American relief representatives are to have complete freedom in traveling through or leaving Russia.

The negotiations had been in a virtual state of deadlock upon these two questions and Litvinoff had inspired a long argumentative article in the Novyput, the local bolshevik organ, conveying the veiled threat to break off the negotiations.

Director Brown, following receipt of advices from Washington has referred two additional points to the American government which have been raised in the course of the negotiations. A reply from Washington is not expected before Saturday.

Litvinof has been constantly struggling to get the distribution of the relief supplies into the Soviet's hands but Brown would not admit to this.

The bolshevik organ Novyput charged that the Americans were not following humantarian dictates but had political aims in view.

The majority of the committee did not charge directly that any one received money from the Bergdoll family but explained that its finding at length in pointing out the difficulty of exactly defining the offense of conspiracy.

"The eye of man is far more easily deceived in than is his nature reasoning and calm judgment," the committee stated. "Money may pass from hand to hand in an instant and at some obscure place and not be seen. While the passing of it may be proven beyond doubt the consideration for which it did pass may be successfully disputed. On the other hand the full performance to be rendered may be fully established, still the passing of money in payment for the service may be proved only by appeal from the eye to the mental consideration of a chain of established facts. Again, this is the case.

"However no witness willing to tell the whole truth has seen the money actually pass. But, everybody who heard or has read the testimony should be able to see an 'effect' which would not have been produced by any 'cause' except money.

Flays Lawyer.

"But with the advent into the case of him, who by his partner, has been modestly declared to be the 'highest authority in this country on military law' we find sorcerer-like deception practiced upon the trusting. Next we see a palsied old man, overflowing with that generous spirit of acquiescence and lack of resistance in artist like fashion wherever his name could best be commercialized. (This reference is to Judge John W. Westcott, New Jersey lawyer).

"Then we find the activities transferred from Washington, which for the present must be obscured, to Governors Island. This transfer from Washington to Governors Island was so absolute that even an official letter of warning sent from Philadelphia to Washington forecasting Bergdoll's escape within two weeks was stowed away in a pigeonhole never to find its way to Bergdoll's prison, that he might be properly guarded.

"We see the commandant of the prison turn deaf, dumb and blind to every direction that might hinder Birgdoll's escape. Finally, and as a fitting sequal to this sordid tale, we find the derelict commandant of Governors Island was prosecuted by one whose shame should be measured only by his days. Following the flimsy pretense—only a pretense—at prosecution, the commandant's fate was given to a court composed of military officers who found him "not guilty."

"Bergdoll escaped through the misdoing of somebody other than the Bergdoll family and their immediate associates, such as Romig, tretcher, Gibboney and Mrs. Bergdoll. It is hoped that this report bares to congress the others who are more guilty than even the Bergdoll family. Shall they go unwhipped of justice?"

Facilitate Escape.

The committee declared that every direction which looked toward Bergdoll's safe keeping was rejected by Hunt and everything that might facilitate his escape was done without question or quibble.

In commenting on Hunt's trial the committee said that Colonel Cresson, the prosecuting judge advocate "gave notice that he would not, if he could, prove that he did not furnish a sufficient guard if he was bribed not to do so."

"The inevitable conclusion," the majority report states, "is that Bergdoll bought his way out; yet Colonel Cresson, the prosecutor, boldly announced that he would not prove that to be the case even if he could. Prisoners in making escapes use different instruments. Some use crowbars, some fine files, some saws and some false keys. The instruments used by Bergdoll was money."

Adjutant Blamed.

The minority report placed the primary responsibility for Bergdoll's escape on Major General Peter Harris, adjutant general of the army but said that Harris had "no improper motives."

"It is apparent, however," the minority report stated, "that his (Harris') mind was readily overcome by the strong statements of Ansell and the one essential condition, without which nothing could have been accomplished and the escape as blamed would have been impossible, namely—an order from the adjutant general permitting Bergdoll to leave prison—could not have been obtained had not General Harris readily yielded to the earnest and artful case put up by his former associate in the war department, or having been persuaded to consent had he ordered instead of suggested, that an officer accompany the proposed expedition."

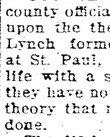

Maojr Hunt is charged in the minority report with grave "dereliction of duty" in not ordering an officer to accompany Bergdoll in compliance with the request of the adjutant general and it is stated that Hunt's acquittal is a "serious reflection" upon the court martial system of the army.

PROBE MYSTERY DEATH FORMER DRY OFFICIAL

CLEVELAND, Aug 18.—While county officials today are proceeding upon the theory that Edward J. Lynch former collector of customs at St. Paul, Minn., ended his own life with a shot from a revolver, they have not entirely discarded the theory that murder may have been done.

The lifeless body of the former official and power in Minnesota democratic circles was found late yesterday in a row boat floating down the Chagrin river near Gates Mills, twenty miles from here. James Muilen, a laborer, seeing a man apparently asleep, shouted, but received no answer. He then rowed out to the boat and found Lynch dead with a bullet wound through his abdomen. No weapon was found in the boat.

Lynch, with his wife, had been spending the summer with his daughter, Mrs. E. L. Shaner, and had made arrangements to return to St. Paul tomorrow, having purchased tickets for the trip home.

CHAUTAUQUA CLOSES WITH FINE CONCERT

The concert given by the Proctor-Stolofsky Concert Co., last evening was the closing number of the Chautauqua course, and was a fitting climax to the many fine entertainment that preceded it.

Harold Proctor, the popular California tenor, was in good spirits and voice, and was very liberal with his numbers and encores. The first part of his program was devoted to French, and Italian opera, but was sung in English so plainly that his audience was able to plainly distinguish the words.

The latter part of his program was devoted to a series of Irish, English and American songs, many of hich has never been heard here before. Mr. Proctor has a beautiful voice and was not afraid to use it.

Miss Irene Stolofsky, the violinist, is one of the marvel violinists of her time. She gave as her first number a Hungarian dance selection that gave her an opportunity to demonstrate her thorough mastery of the violin. This was but a prelude to what was to follow, and she held her audience under a spell of musical wizardy and enchantment that brought for her repeated encores. William Janaushek, the accompanist on the piano was also an artist, and many would have been pleased to hear him in a seperate number.

The Chautauqua has been a success in every way except financially. The guarantors will be obliged to make up the shortage. It was announced that there would be a Chautauqua the coming year and that a guarantee would not be asked for. Some organization will be asked to take it up, and take care of the canvassing. The management expressed the belief that Elyria was large enough to support a first class Chautauqua and that the effort would be made to conduct it another year without the formality of a guarantee.

STOCKS

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Generally the stock market was steried in the earlier trading today.

A feature was a better response to recent favorable developments by the railroad shares. In this group, gains ranging up to a full point were made in a number of stocks.

The technical character of the rally in stocks on Wednesday after a number of issues had reached new low prices for the year became apparent in the first hour of business today. For a time the market had a show of strength but by the end of the first hour trading resumed the feeling out process for weak spot causing declines of from one to two points.

Cuba cane sugar declined from 9 1-2 to 8 1-2 and the prefered from 23 1-4 to 20. The railroad stocks lost part of their early gains.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Whiskey, wines and other liquors—in quantity—began pouring in upon American soil today for consignees in other countries, in very large volume, according to reports to the treasury today. TUTHILL-FOSTER FEUD IS AGAIN IN COURTS

The trouble over a tree in the yard of F. W. Tuthill, of Seventh street, that hangs over the yard of J. L. Foster, of Eighth street, is still a bone of contention. A short time ago Tuthill got out a restraining order to prevent the Foster's from trimming the tree, now Foster has applied for a restraining order claiming that the shade from the tree and the roots which encroach on their property make it impossible for them to grow flowers or vegetables in their garden, and that the foliage and seed from the tree obstruct the gutters of the house, and the drains and sewers on the Foster lot.

How Old Age Comes To Those Who Invite It

—"There's a Reason"

THERE are plain rules, well understood, about keeping a piece of machinery in repair and running smoothly.

Is the body as important as an automobile engine or a furnace?

Is it as reasonable to talk about the best ways of sustaining the body as it is to talk of proper care for the engine or the furnace?

Well, then—

The body is strengthened, warmed, sustained—kept young—in a very practical and scientific way.

Some Simple Facts

Food is heat and power and renewal for the body.

After all, there's nothing mysterious or magical about what food does in serving human need.

Nothing mysterious, but much that is interesting—and important.

Some foods are particularly good for the body.

GRAPE-NUTS is such a food.

Grape-Nuts is made from whole wheat and malted barley flour—product of the two grains which are richest in food elements for human need. Under the outer, or bran coating of the grain, nature has placed phosphates and lime which go to the making of bone, and the red blood corpuscles.

This may sound like physiology, but it works like health.

Hunger Not Cheated

All the richness of the kernel, together with essential mineral elements, are retained in the making of Grape-Nuts. Often, in the manufacture of foods, some of the most vital of nature's provisions are thrown away.

The long baking process (Grape-Nuts is the result of 20 hours continuous baking) partially pre-digests the food substances, develops the starches into dextrin and maltose—giving to Grape-Nuts its own natural sweetness—and produces a food which, when served with milk or cream, has been found by chemists to be almost perfectly balanced in qualities of nutrition.

The Enemies Within

Now, old age begins in the larger intestine.

This is what the scientists have found who know the human body as the mechanical expert knows his automobile engine.

No need to go into the particulars—it's enough to say that certain effects produced by food which is slow in digesting develop fermentation and other conditions which cause the bodily machine to slow down and wear out sooner than necessary.

Grape-Nuts digests quickly and wholesomely.

Much of this is due to the fact that the long baking has partly pre-digested the nutriment; partly to the fact that there is contained in Grape-Nuts the essential "roughness" to stimulate the action of the intestines.

Health's Splendid Champion

Grape-Nuts is a delightful food, for it is uniquely rich and sweet in flavor, and always crisp. It is unusually nutritious, for it has all the body-building elements of the most perfect food grains. It is a convenient and economical food, for it is ready to eat from the package, keeps in any climate, and is appetizing to the last bit.

It builds strength and vigor without taxing the digestion or leaving, within the body, elements whose familiar harm is really the beginning of "old age."

Grape-Nuts has been a favorite food, around the world, for nearly a quarter of a century—

And there is a reason!

"Whew! That was a narrow squeak!" Dicky's relieved voice interrupted my speculation. "I thought sure the old boy had us for a minute. Of course, he couldn't have suspected the truth, but he'd have known we were stalling on some account or other if he'd ever lamped this envelope. Let's find out where the postoffice is in this berg, and we'll get rid of the thing."

I slowed up the car and he called the inquiry to a passing farmer. The man jerked his thumb over his shoulder in the direction opposite to the one we were going, and I swung the car around, proceeded on the road he had indicated, and in another two minutes was rewarded with the sight of the rustic office.

A Search.

I had a sudden impulse to snatch the letter from Dicky's fingers and tear it into shreds instead of permitting it to go on its unchecked way to Grace Draper. But I crushed the impulse, and silently drove away from the postoffice with a haunting little premonition of evil to come.

"Where to now, old dear?" Dicky asked idly. "Tiger farm or our own?"

"Neither," I returned, forcing a smile. "I must go first to that farmhouse where father and you are stopping, and see that he has left nothing cluttering his room. He gave it up, you know."

"Yes," Dicky drawled, "and I suppose that if he left a pin or a scrap of paper on the floor your conscientious soul won't rest until it has been removed and the reputation of your family for perfect order rescued from shrieching."

I laughed and laid my hand on his with a light caress, for I knew that beneath his gibe lay a touch of resentment for this very tendency of mine to revel in orderliness. Dicky, though fastidious to a fault, is the most disorderly person imaginable, and I waste more time picking up his belongings than I can well spare.

"You ought to be thankful it isn't you this time," I said lightly, and we talked of other things until we turned into the yard of the farmhouse where my father had roomed.

I searched the room thoroughly, hardly acknowledging to myself that I hoped to find some clue to his sudden journey. There was no fireplace, so he could not have burned the telegram, and in his waste basket were only a few innocuous envelopes. He must have put the pieces of the telegram in his pocket, for I knew his scrupulous habit of destroying all professional communications. And then, on the stairs outside the door, I found two tiny scraps of yellow paper.

YOUR HEALTH

Why Arthritis May Come From Many Varying Causes

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Commissioner of Health, New York City

LIKE other parts of our bodies, our joints are liable to disease. Inflammation of a joint is called "arthritis."

Injuries may cause arthritis, but almost always this disease is secondary to some other condition. Usually the producing disease is characterized by the formation of pus.

Among the pus-forming conditions which may be followed by inflammation of the joints, are abscesses at the root of the teeth and "pyorrhoea."

Pyorrhoea is a disease of the gums around the teeth. In advanced cases pus forms and gradually this is absorbed by the system. After a while, as a result, a joint here and there may become inflamed.

Diseased tonsils, where they become pus infected, may result in arthritis. So also the nasal sinuses may be centres of pus production and be the cause of disease of the joints.

Several Other Causes.

If elimination of the bodily wastes or poisons is interfered with the joints may be affected. Failure of function of the kidneys or intestines may thus become a cause for arthritis.

Some of the general diseases, like tuberculosis, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, the social diseases and rheumatism may direct part of their attack against the joints.

You see, it is not necessary to have a wound or endure direct injury in order to damage and infect the joints. The germs of disease may be carried through the blood-vessels or the lymph channels.

It is not so common in America, but in some countries gout is a great factor in the production of this disease.

The symptoms of arthritis vary greatly. In some cases the joints—for instance, of the fingers—swell enormously. They become red, hot and exceedingly tender to the touch. All the familiar signs of inflammation are present. The joints may be moved, but it is painful to do it. While the deformity is conspicuous the function of the joint is not lost.

In other cases the deformity is hardly to be noticed, but the joint is stiff at first, and finally entirely incapable of motion.

Rest and Quiet.

In arthritis from acute rheumatism there is high fever. In these cases a number of joints may be involved at the same time.

In tubercular arthritis a single joint makes the beginning of a much slower process. In this form there is usually a history of an injury beforehand.

The first indication for treatment in the acute and painful cases of arthritis is rest and quiet. The joint is fixed by splints and bandages, and thus protected against movement.

In the chronic and painless form, fixation in one position is undesirable. It may lead to permanent stiffness and uselessness of the joint. Baking, when the joint is placed in a chamber and exposed to very hot air, is considered a valuable procedure. Massage and careful movement of the joint are helpful. If a baking outfit is not available, hot compresses may be applied at frequent intervals.

If pus forms in the joint it must be drawn off by operation.

Sometimes vaccines are employed in the treatment of arthritis.

Needless to say, the possible effects of this disease are so serious that skilled medical care should be called upon at the earliest possible moment.

Answers to Health Questions

MISS F. A. G. Q—I am 72 years of age, and have hives. Will you kindly tell me the cause and cure for them?

A—Hives generally are caused by some indiscretion in the diet. Begin treatment by eliminating from the diet those substances for which you have an idiosyncrasy. Witch-hazel and alkaline baths often stop the itching.

C. E. A. Q—Will you kindly advise me what causes canker of the mouth? Frequently I have these little spots appearing on my tongue, and they are extremely sore.

A—Indiscretion in diet is the cause. Eat less for a time and take only simple foods. In the meantime apply alum directly upon the spots.

MISS I. E. J. Q—I was operated on for appendicitis when I was 12 years old, and my stomach is very large. What causes this?

2—What kind of soap is good to keep scars clean?

A—Your condition has nothing to do with your operation. Have your doctor examine you.

2—Any pure soap.

I. C. U. Q—I am a woman 36 years old. Two days ago a numb feeling, without pain of any kind, settled in my left arm and leg. I have massaged it without relief. Can you tell me of a cure?

W. C. Q—Nine years ago I noticed a ringing in my ears, and shortly thereafter realized that my hearing was gradually getting worse. Since that time I have been to eye and ear specialists, but my hearing continues to grow worse all the time. I am positive it is chronic catarrh. What shall I do?

A—You may have a chronic nasal catarrh which has extended to your ears. If this is true, you should not expect to be cured or relieved in too short a period. You ought to go to the nearest large hospital for a careful examination and treatment.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, AUG. 19.

Under this day's sidereal rule there is prospect of a rather sudden or abrupt change or removal, or possibly an unplanned journey. While the forces may not be interpreted as benefic, there are certain helpful aspects which may assist to fair financial returns. But this requires careful administration of the matters in hand. In social, domestic and affectional affairs there may also be experienced restless and unsettled conditions, with the prospect of disappointments or perplexities.

Those whose birthday it is should endeavor to pass a quiet and well-managed year, in order to reap the prophesied benefits. They should move or travel with care, and only after sufficient deliberation. A child born on this day may be inclined to be restless and to make frequent changes. Despite this unsettled disposition it will make a success of its undertakings financially.

Good Night Stories

Illustrated by Nora Hawkins

DORIS LEARNS SOMETHING FROM THE WONDER GROVE.

DORIS stood looking at the different trees which made the grove, while Squeedee, spied her and ran up to her side.

"I didn't wait to be wished for," he laughed in greeting. "I just came ahead of your wish."

"I'm glad you did," said Doris, shaking the little elfin's hand. "I am terribly puzzled trying to tell one tree from another."

"What's on your mind now?" inquired the elfin. "I suppose you want to call this a pine tree, do you?"

"That's just it!" laughed Doris. "I can't tell which is the pine and which is the fir tree. They all seem to have cones."

"Isn't that funny!" laughed a squeaky voice, and a queer little old man with long, green whiskers poked his head out from among the branches of the tree nearest Doris and nodded. "So many little folks have that same trouble. They never can tell which is which."

"Well, old Pine Keeper," laughed Squeedee, "this is Doris, and I'm sure she will appreciate listening to the difference, if you care to tell her."

"Indeed I would," said Doris, coming closer to the little old green-whiskered man.

"Well, you see, the pines, firs, spruces, hemlocks, larches and cedars all belong to the same family, and do resemble one another in one way—they all bear cones," said the old fellow. "Family resemblance, I guess you'd call that, but they are certainly different in other ways.

"For instance, this castle I live in is the real, true pine—the evergreen tree."

"Isn't That Funny!"

When a young tree starts from a seed of this tree the buds form in a circle and become a circle of branches. The middle bud, being the strongest, makes the trunk of the tree. It has leaves which grow in groups of from two to five, wrapped together. The cones are thick and woody.

"Now, the spruce and the hemlock have single leaves attached to little ridges on the stem. Some of the cones grow long, the scales snugly tucked on top of each, like the Norway spruce. But the cones of the white pine are separated one from the other and are about as long as the spruce. Now, the hemlock and pitch pine have much smaller cones. America has many forests of yellow and white pine, while Canada has forests of red pine."

"My, what a wonderful family!" exclaimed Doris, running her fingers over the sweet-scented leaves. "How proud you must be to be the Pine Keeper!"

"Indeed I am!" laughed the green-whiskered little old man. "For there's not a part of the pine tree that isn't valuable. The timber is used for shipbuilding. The sap gives tar, resin and turpentine. The leaves are pressed for their aromatic perfume, also sometimes pine wool is made from the leaves. The inner bark is used in some countries for food, and in other countries the seeds are eaten for dessert."

Just then the wind whistled through the branches, and the funny little green-whiskered old man pulled in his head, and when Doris turned to speak to Squeedee he also had disappeared. But Doris never forgot what she had been told, and before long she could tell any tree from the other when she spied the leaves and cones they bore.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Chats About Some New Features of an Eton Suit.

I WAS walking down the avenue recently with Coralie Stanton, an old school friend, who is married and lives out-of-town. As her visits to the city are usually few and far between, she always makes the most of them, and she generally discusses the latest trend in dress with me.

As we passed the door of one of the most exclusive shops on the avenue, Coralie said:

"What a dashing little suit!"

"Where?" I queried, for my eyes were straying across the street at that particular moment.

"On the girl who has just come out of that shop," answered Coralie.

"Oh, now I see it," I replied, as the girl in question went slowly down the avenue.

"Isn't it awfully good style?" asked Coralie, with evident interest.

"Yes, it is," I answered, as I rummaged in my handbag for my sketch-book.

"Are you going to make a drawing of it?" inquired Coralie, with evident interest.

"Certainly, if the sweet damosel does not vanish right away," I replied.

"Of what is it made?" was Coralie's next question.

"Gabardine, although, of course, it would look just as smart if you were to use a serge," I replied.

"What about the color? Do you think any other shade could be used as satisfactorily as navy blue?" questioned Coralie.

"Well, for early fall navy blue is good, but I believe this model would look as well if it were made in one of the lovely dark browns which are to be so much affected this season," was my answer.

"Did you notice that the back of the jacket is longer than the front?" asked Coralie.

"Oh, is that so? I thought it was a regular Eton," I answered.

"It has all the hall-marks of the Eton in front, but in the back it is quite a little longer, and there is a pleating of the gabardine set in above the braiding," replied Coralie.

"The braiding is interesting. It must be soutache," I said, as I hurriedly finished my sketch.

"Yes, and it's used not only to outline the little jacket, but also to border the pleats which outline the aprons," remarked Coralie.

"Aprons?" I questioned.

"Why, yes. There was a pleated apron of the gabardine on the front as well as the back of the skirt," said Coralie, delighted that her powers of observation were greater than mine.

"Then I must make a note of that on my drawing," I said, as I hastily opened my sketchbook again.

"Don't forget to indicate that the aprons are lined with white silk serge," remarked Coralie with a smile.

"How did you like the wide-cuffed sleeves?" I asked my friend, determined that she should know that I had noticed some of the distinctive features of this suit.

"I like them immensely, as you can wear wrinkly gloves with them. Are they to be much worn this season?" asked Coralie.

"Yes, a great many of the new suits are designed with long, wide-mouthed sleeves. I think they are rather pretty," I answered.

"The yellow felt hat slashed around the edge of the brim is striking," remarked Coralie.

"Yes, many of the smartest hats have practically no trimming, except, perhaps, a stitching to outline the brim or a bind of ribbon or a dashing quill. The shape alone gives smartness," I said while the creation we had been discussing became lost to view.

White Soutache Braid Is the Effective Decoration of This Navy Gabardine Suit.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the Home Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Solving the Problems of Luncheon Favors and Place-Cards.

THERE is rarely a luncheon or dinner given nowadays where favors and place-cards are omitted. The hostess counts on these little trifles to start the conversational ball rolling and as a means of breaking the social ice.

There is such a wide choice among the favors and cards it is only a question of how much one wishes to spend on them which governs the selection. Place-cards show the guests where the hostess wishes them to sit and the placing of the guests is usually arranged in the most tactful manner.

Most place-cards are of paper formation and their cost depends upon their originality or the work lavished on them.

Tiny paper parasols have streamers from the handles on which to write the names. They are in plain colors and in patterned papers. Dainty painted butterflies of paper are made in such a manner as to be easily attached to the rims of the water glasses. They are made with gauze wings, done in natural markings, with a plain place left on the body or the wing for the name.

Fairies, large single flowers and patriotic emblems are made to fasten on the water glasses. Then there are endless comics, heads, figures and little groups which are chosen to carry out the ideas of the party.

At a suffrage luncheon which a friend of mine attended the other day, little wooden soap boxes made of papier-mache had wee doll speakers fastened to them named for prominent suffragists. Each box was weighted with salted nuts, and the guest's name appeared on the bonnet or hat crown of the speaker.

For a vegetarian luncheon there are imitation vegetable favors of all sorts which may be used. If they are made of silk or cloth they may be used later as cushions, needlebooks and so on.

One of the newest ideas in place-cards is a little crocheted silk hat, smartly trimmed, which rests upon a wee hatstand. The crown of the hat holds a rolled tape measure. The guest's name is on a card marked "sold," which is attached to the stand.

Blown eggs, painted and dressed, and fastened to a card were recently used for a "coming out" luncheon. The colors of the decorations were yellow and white. The centrepiece was a favor pie in the form of a nest with downy chicks and shells in it. The favors were egg-shell china pin trays.

Favors take the form of useful little gifts rather than expensive, but useless trifles in these thrifty times.

Painted leather sweater belts, pin cases for the traveling bag, motor hat bags of embroidered linen and wicker covered glass flower bowls, small in size, are among the novelties.

At a very recent dinner I attended the women had a choice of charmingly woven novel Philippine hats. Some of them were developed in two colors, plaided or striped. Others were of plain white with colored facings, while some were in rainbow colorings, plain or fringed at the edges. The hats are suitable for outing wear and not only wash but they may be dyed if one tires of the original color.

Hand-embroidered trifles, hand-made handkerchiefs and linen hats figure in the selection of favors which may be made at home and show the original ideas of the various hostesses.

Any one may buy favors but not everyone can make unusual favors.

FAMOUS "WITS" OF HISTORY

Little Stories of Men and Women Whose Sayings Are Still Remembered

By MARK STUYVESANT

Some of the Reasons Whistler Was Called "The Funniest Man in Paris."

WHEN Whistler won the reluctant consent of his family to go to Paris and study art, he entered into the spirit of the studios and the times with the eagerness of one whose dream had at last come true. And yet Poynter, in a speech after the death of Whistler, declared:

"Thrown very intimately in Whistler's company in early days, I knew him well when he was a student in Paris—that is, if he could be called a student, who, to my knowledge, during the two or three years when I was associated with him, devoted hardly as many weeks to study. His genius, however, found its way in spite of an excess of the natural indolence of disposition and love of pleasure, of which a certain share has been the hereditary attribute of the art student."

A friend of Whistler's family went to Paris and was entrusted with a draft for Whistler's allowance. He wrote of the way he found Whistler, to the Pennells, who wrote Whistler's biography:

"He took me to his quarters in a little back street, up ten flights of stairs—a tiny room with brick floor, a cot-bed, a chair on which were a basin and pitcher—and that was all! We sat on the cot, and talked as cheerfully as if in a palace—and he got the draft.

"'Now,' said he, 'I shall move downstairs, and begin all over—furnish my room comfortably. You see, I have just eaten my washstand and borrowed a little, hoping the draft would arrive. Have been living for some time on my wardrobe. You are just in time, don't know what I should have done, but it often happens this way! I first eat a wardrobe, and then move upstairs a flight or two, but seldom get so high as this before the draft comes!'"

"I Shall Move."

That even then Whistler was known as a whimsical joker, is evidenced by the way this old friend of the family comments on Whistler's statement to him. He says:

"How true this is I can't say, but it sounds probable, and very like Whistler—at that age—he was then about 25 or just 26 at most."

Laughing, joking and winning his way through picturesque hardships by his keen wit, Whistler achieved in Paris a reputation as the leader of disorders at the Louvre and the organizer of negro minstrels. Vinton, who was a student of the school of mines, afterwards professor of mining at Columbia University, and during the civil war a brigadier-general, told the following story which amusingly testifies to Whistler's humor during his student days in Paris.

One night an officer wandered into Vinton's camp in South Carolina. He sent word to the general by a sergeant of the guard that he was an officer who had lost his way. He asked permission to pass the night in Vinton's camp, adding that he had known Gen. Vinton when a student in Paris. Gen. Vinton sent for the officer, but failed to recognize him. The general did not wish to turn the officer away, and yet, might he not be a spy? He gave the matter deep thought, and suddenly asked the waiting officer:

"Who was the funniest man we knew in Paris?"

"Whistler!" instantly answered the officer.

"All right," Gen. Vinton declared. "Take that empty cot, you are no spy."

SUFFERED ALL A WOMAN COULD

Mrs. Meyer Finally Found Relief and Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

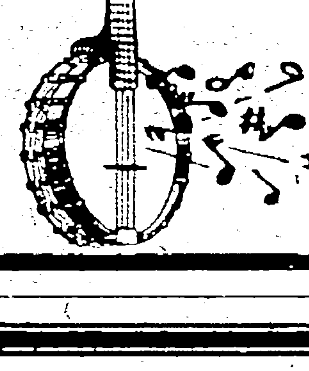

Orange, Cal.—"I always feel very grateful to you, as some twenty years ago three doctors said I had to have a serious operation. I had a tumor, and ulcers which would gather and break. I had displacement so badly that I could hardly sit down at times, and it seemed as if I suffered everything that a woman could suffer. Then some one advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I took it until I was cured and saved from the operation. I have told women of your wonderful medicine times without number, and I am willing that you should use these facts and my name if you like. I also used your Compound during the Change, and I can do all my own work but the heavy part, and can walk miles every day as I help my husband in the office."—Mrs. J. H. Meyer, 412 South Orange St., Orange, California.

A great many women who suffered like this have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

'LAND OF HOPE' IS COMING TO COLONIAL

So successful was Alice Brady, the Realart star, in her impersonation of the young Polish immigrant girl in "The Land of Hope" her latest release that she has decided to do a series of pictures of a similar type, allowing her to portray humble heroines, rather than the society types she has heretofore done.

"I should like nothing better than to do a series of just such strong, simple, appealing roles," said Miss Brady recently. "I am enthusiastic over "The Land of Hope" and feel that I have never been given a better vehicle than this drama of humble people and their struggles."

"The Land of Hope," which is a collaboration by the Hattons and Robet Milton comes for a three day run at the Colonial Theater next Sunday.

NEWPORT AQUATICS ENTHRALL SOCIETY

Newport's summer season is speeding merrily along in the younger circles by the fervor with which the youngsters enter into swimming and diving competitions. Fashionable Newport attends these meets at Bailey's Beach in numbers, and surf riding is a sport enjoyed by young and old alike at the famous society resort. None but the elite can enter the sacred portals leading to Bailey's, therefore the affairs are strictly exclusive. At rare intervals the intrepid news photographer gets by the watchful eye of the guardian of the gate, and pictures of the exclusive folk can then be had. Sarah Moreland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Moreland, of Pittsburgh, is shown riding the surf, while watching the boys and girls in swimming contests at Bailey's.

ELYRIA I. T. S. PLAN REVENGE IN SUNDAY GAME WITH DOVER

The many fans and patrons of the Elyria I. T. S. Sunday ball games at Riverview Park are pleased with the announcement that the Dover Baseball team are to be the visitors next Sunday.

Dover has been very prominent on the baseball map of Northern Ohio for several years, and can be counted on to make matters interesting against any opposition. They have proven their class to Elyria fans by carrying home the laurels when they clashed with the Columbia Club's team earlier in the season, and Manager Struck has been anxiously and expectantly looking forward to August 21st with perfect confidence that his reorganized Elyria I. T. S. team will amply satisfy a longing for revenge, which he and the players have been nursing since Dover defeated them, he intends that Dover shall know they have a very different outfit to tackle this time, and that the series will be "up sticks" after Sundays game.

Individually the Elyria players are anxious for the opportunity to again test their "stuff" against a team in their own class, which will compel them to exercise all their ginger and pep that is so well known to the regulars in the grand stand.

Having disposed of the Federals, Eagles and Firemen ball teams, the Elyria I. T. S. claim they are the only class A club in Elyria, which is playing Sunday games and are open to challenges from any other class A team in this county, for the county championship, in connection with the above, it should be taken into consideration that a series with the famous Court House Rats is impossible as several of the players are signed up to play with the Rats on Saturday and with Elyria I. T. S. on Sundays.

Managers of Class A clubs who dispute the Elyria I. T. S. claim of county champions, should address their manager, William Struck, care of Wilkins-Hust Co., Elyria.

The army of rooters who accompanied the Dover club, when they last played here, were of the extremely noisy variety and no doubt were a factor that helped their boys to a victory. They will be on hand again next Sunday, and will no doubt, have their noise with them. However, they will have to go some to overcome the demonstration of pent up enthusiasm by Elyria's loyal rooters.

In preparation for the Dover game, the entire Elyria I. T. S. team will practice at Riverview Park Friday evening.

PRESBYTERIANS' TEAM SWAMPED

Lutherans and Presbyterians played their last game in the Church League Wednesday evening and divided seventeen runs between them. Len Krugman was the star batter with three hits in four times at bat. The Presbyterians brought their total of errors to fifty two for the season.

The Congregationals and Methodists will wind up the season on Friday. The Congregationalists have been playing good ball of late and are likely to beat the Methodists for the second time this season. The game will start at 5:30.

TAGGING THE BASES

The Yankees hammered White Sox pitchers to all corners of the lot and took their first western game. Ruth got another homer, his 45th, off Wienecke.

Johnny Walker, the Athletic's first baseman, was knocked out by a ball batted by Jamiesen at Cleveland. The Indians overwhelmed the Athletics.

Miller's home run with Milan on base, saved the Senators a shutout at St. Louis at the hands of Shockey. The Browns won easily.

The Cubs punched the last pennant chance out of the Braves by taking a twin bill. Ponder and Jones pitched for the winners.

George Kelly's home, his 20th, came in the first inning with the bags full enabled the Giants to trim the Reds.

Rain stopped the other games.

The Tigers have asked waivers on Donnie Bush.

It is estimated that at least ten million dollars in gold is hoarded every ear by the native population in India, Africa and Persia, for whom gold has a wonderful fascination. Any gold that comes into their hands as wages, or in any other way, is immediately hidden away.

How to Be Rid of Dangerous Dandruff

If you have dandruff you must get rid of it quick—it's positively dangerous and will surely destroy your hair if you don't

Dandruffy heads mean faded, brittle, gray, scraggly hair that will not grow—then you are bald and nothing can help you

The only sure way to abolish dandruff for good is to destroy the germ that causes it To do this quickly, surely, and safely there is nothing as effective as Parisian sage, which you can get at any good druggist such as C. W. Phillips', who guarantees it to keep away dandruff, stop itching scalp and falling hair, and stimulate a new growth, or the cost, small as it is, will be refunded.

Parisian sage is a scientific preparation that supplies all hair needs—an antiseptic liquid, neither sticky or greasy, easy to use, and daintily perfumed.—Advt.

Navy Airman Sails to Fly ZR-2 from England

Lieutenant-Commander R. E. Byrd Jr., of the U. S. Navy Air Service, photographed aboard the S. S. Olympic as he sailed from New York for England to take command of the giant Navy dirigible ZR-2. WANTS DISARM CONFERENCE TO BE HELD OPEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The demand for open sessions of the coming sessions on disarmament and far eastern problems is growing among both republican and democratic senators today.

A hot fight is anticipated over the proposal of Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, for open sessions which he offered as an amendment to the bill carrying an appropriation of $200,000 to meet the expenses of American participation in the conference.

Senators Borah, republican Idaho, and Johnson, republican, California, are among those on the republican side who are expected to join with Harrison and other democratic senators in insisting upon the adoption of the amendment.

If the threatened battle is protracted, it may hold up the appropriation and incidentally that for $48,500 for the shipping board which the bill also carries, until after the senate recess which is to start on August 24.

The administration forces will doubtless fight the amendment on the ground that the administration should not be tied by an act of the senate to any policy governing or affecting the conference.

But the fight is likely to provoke another tempestuous debate on the probable purposes and results of the conference which promise to occupy much of the senate's attention up to and during the time the conference is held. The conference is already splitting both republican and democratic senators into groups in accordance with the way their sympathies lie with respect to the president's plans for it, and unlimited debate similar to that which the Versailles treaty and the league of nations provoked is in prospect.

The knowledge that the president is considering the appointment of former secretary of state Elihu Root as one of the American representatives at the conference, is stirring up opposition from those senators whose views on national and international questions are widely divergent from Root's. Expressed opposition to Root's proposed selection has revived the name of Senator Knox, republican, Pennsylvania, former secretary of state, as one the president would do well to appoint instead of Root. Anther development today was the reported disinclination of Senator Underwood of Alabama, the democratic minority leader of the senate, to accept the president's proffer of a place at the conference table. Underwood is absent from Washington but some democratic senators closely associated with him expressed opinion that they would refuse to serve as an American delegate to the conference.

ELYRIA MOOSE PLAN TO ATTEND FESTIVAL

HOME GROWN PEACHES PLACED ON MARKET

The first home grown peaches were placed on the market this morning and they were of exceptional quality and size, being nearly as large as a baseball. Dealers were asking $2.45 for a half bushel basket. The peaches came from the west part of the county and the man who raised them stated that last year he sold over 1,000 bushels of peaches and this year would not have over a hundred. Many of his neighbors and competitors did not have any. The large size of the fruit he attributed to the small amount that each tree bore.

LEGAL NOTICE

LEGAL NOTICE.
In the Court of Common Pleas.
No. 17910.
Samuel White and Thomas B. Allison, Plaintiffs,
vs.
John H. Rupert, et al., Defendants.
The defendants, John H. Rupert, Alice A. Rupert, whose place of residence is unknown will take notice that on the 12th day of April, 1921, the plaintiffs filed their petition in the above entitled action, in the Common Pleas Court of Lorain County Ohio, being cause No. 17910, in said Court in which cause said plaintiffs allege that they are the owners of eight promissory notes of Eight Hundred Dollars each and one note of Seven Thousand Six Hundred Dollars, a copy of which notes are attached to said petition; that there are no endorsements thereon and that the same are due and payable with interest as therein set forth; that to secure said notes the defendants, John H. Rupert and Alice A. Rupert, executed a mortgage to, on the following premises, to wit:
Situated in the Township of Penfield, County of Lorain and State of Ohio, and known as being in tract No. 4, and in Lots 9, 10, and 11, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the Northwest corner of Lot No. 9; thence Easterly along the North line of said Lot No. 9, to the center line of Black River, so called; thence Southerly following the course of said river and along the center line thereof to a point where the North line of Myrtle May Luke intersects the center line of said river; thence Westerly to the Northerly line of lands of said Myrtle May Luke a distance of about 2000 feet, to the Northwest corner of said lands; thence Southerly in the easterly line of said lands of Myrtle May Luke and lands of Elyria Gallatin a distance of about 650.5 feet to the center line of the East and West public highway; thence Westerly in the center line of said highway to the Southeast corner of lands of P. Containing about 81 acres in Lot No. 9, about 101 acres in Lot No. 10 and about 75 acres in Lot No. 11.
Said petition avers that the conditions of said mortgage have been broken and that the defendants, John H. and Alice A. Rupert sold said land to the defendant, W. H. Coley, and that he in turn sold the same to the defendants, C. E. Gordin, and that plaintiffs therefore pray the court to determine the amount due on said notes and render judgment therefor against all the defendants; that said mortgage deed be foreclosed; that said premises be ordered sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of said debts and equitable relief.
The defendants are hereby notified to file their answers herein on or before the 24th day of September, 1921, or said petition will be confessed as true and judgment and decree will be entered as prayed for in said petition.

IT WOULD BANKRUPT THE STANDARD OIL

Under the re-organization law, James B. Kearns, who has been factory inspector for Ohio for ten years, was dismissed by Percy Tetlow, Director of Industrial Relations.

The incident has caused more or less of an uproar in the department. Speaking of Mr. Kearns' removal, Mr. Tetlow says that he has no fault to find with Mr. Kearns' work, in fact, he praised it. He said further, "I have no doubt that Mr. Kearns would have been willing to co-operate in the changes which I am planning to inaugurate in the departments, but I felt that I should name my own man, inasmuch as the division chief is responsible to me and the re-organization act has placed the position in the unclassified service."

We are simply calling attention to this thing to show the natural character and working out of this re-organization bill. It takes certain men from the classified Civil Service list, gives unlimited power regardless of the experience and ability of the men in the position to those who are above them, and who have had no experience and they desire, of course, to appoint their own "personal" man.

It becomes a personal organization in the hands of one who is thinking of his own personal success and achievement primarily, and when the chief is defeated for the office, namely, the governor, there is a complete exodus of experienced men in the job and a new company of novices entered upon their labors.

This policy would bankrupt the Standard Oil Company in eighteen months. It will not help Ohio.

A UNION STATION FOR CLEVELAND

Ever since we can remember the Union Station of Cleveland has been a disgrace to that city. It has generally been settled that the new station would be at the square, the trains coming through tunnels, and the station erected west of Hotel Cleveland.

Through the activities of Peter Witt, very largely, and with the Pennsylvania Railroad assisting, the Interstate Commerce Commission has refused to permit the station at this point.

There promises now to be a fight of such character that Cleveland will have to be contented with the miserable place called the Union Station for many years in the future.

We are not sufficiently convinced with the facts to hazard an opinion upon the merits of the particular sites but we are sufficiently familiar with the character of the railroad stations in Cleveland to declare that there is no place where a real station is more needed, in our judgment, in this country, not even in Elyria, and Elyria certainly needs a new station.

SENATOR LODGE A DELEGATE

Senator Lodge has been appointed a member of the American Delegation to the disarmament conference which will meet next November.

Senator Lodge has had sufficient knowledge of all of the matters which are likely to come before this conference together with years of public service and he should be a man well qualified to assist Mr. Hughes in determining matters on behalf of American ideals. We should personally prefer some man, however, who is more pronounced in his views for disarmament, and more pronounced for a League of Nations, even though opposed to the present league constitution.

But in any case, we know that Senator Lodge will undoubtedly speak for a large representation in the United States Senate and for that reason his selection may be wise.
